The great four-mile heat running race for a purse of $25,000 in gold, given by the Pacific Jockey Club, took place here to-day. The race was open to all horses in the world, and the purse was the largest ever given in the United States. The first orse receives $13,000, the second $5,000, the third $4,000 and the fourth $3,000. The entrance fee was ten per cent of the purse, and horses which allowed $1,000 for expenses.

The weather was delightful and the grounds were crowded with spectators long before the commencement of the race, fully 30,000 people sons were congregated on the hillsides south of be obtained. The grand stands were completely filled and the balconies of the club house fully occupied. So great was the crowd that $10 and $20 were paid for lavorable positions for the occupants of carriages. A number of Eastern turimen were on the ground, a portion of whom backed Trad Stevens, it having been thought would win the race. Katie Pease, however, remained invorite, and so free was the betting that over $100,000 changed hands on the result. One of the latest pools sold before the start was Katte Pease, $1,000; Thad Stevens, $320; field, $320.

The most intense excitement prevailed as the time approached for the contest to begin. At twenty minutes past one Hock-Hocking was brought on the track and appeared to be very lame. The judges soon after called the horses to the post, and the following faced the starter:—Thad Stevens, nine years, by long-ford, dam Mary Chiton, by Glencoe; Joe Daniels, five years, by Australian, dam Boily Carter, by Glencoe; Katle Fease, 4 years, by Planet, dam Minnie Mansfield, by Glencoe; Henry, 4 years, by Norolk, dam Versalia, by Soverign; Hock Hocking, 4 years, by Ringmaster, dam Young Fashion, by Monarch; Hardwood, 4 years, by Woodburn, dam Moss Rose, by Knight of St. George; and Alpha, 4 years, by inp. THE RACE.

Pirst Heat.—The horses got off well together. Thad Stevens led for the first three miles, closely pushed by Katle Pease, who went to the iront on the last mile and won the heat, Joe Daniels coming in second and finad Stevens, who was held in, third, four lengths behind the winner. Alpha was withdrawn after the heat, having gone lame. It was also reported that Thad Stevens was lame. Time, 7:434.

Second Heat.—At two o'clock the hell was again rung for the horses. At this time people were still hocking through the gates, and the grounds presented a magnificient spectacle, eclipsing that of the great race of last year. The pools now soid at $2,100 on Katle Pease, $500 on Fhad Stevens, with Joe Daniels toird choice. This heat and the race was won by Katle Pease, Henry second, Hardwood third and Thad Stevens lourth. Hock Hocking and Joe Daniels were distanced, and the latter is Bad to have broken down. The other norses barely saved their distance. Time, 7:332.

The race was one of the most exciting ever witnessed nere. The backers of Thad Stevens were greatly disappointed at the result of the contest.

AMUSEMENTS. Boucleault's New Play at Wallack's. The long promised play from the pen of Mr. Dion was produced last night before a in art, literature and society. It is not often, even at first nights, that so many notabilities assemble to pass a verdict on the playwright's work. as is usual on first nights, the audi-fience was inclined to be critical and the first scenes, though attractive and interesting, were received without any marked enthusiasm. ard high and would be satisfied with nothing that did not at least come up to the standard of the appearance of Mr. Boucicault on the stage the business brightened and the audience abandoned their attitude of reserve. He taten care to provide himself with rism and ready repartee tollowed each other in quick succession the audience warmed to the story and followed with deepened interest the development of the plot. It may be said that the chief interest of the play rests on Mr. Boncicault's shoulders, although he can scarcely be said to be tong properly to the main plot. He manages, however, with his intense good numor and ready wit, to secure the favor of the audience which never quite him until the curtain finally falls on the triumph of virtue. Miss Dyas. too, in the character of a young lady in love against her political convictions, is furnished with a part tuil of tenderness and pathos, and, withal, Engish lover are delightfully amusing, so full are they of waywardness and contradictions. Her part is a difficult one to piay, demanding a mingled force of character and gentleness difficult to render without losing the balance and inclining more than necessary to one or other side. This difficult leat Miss Dyas accomplishes with rare fact and judgment. We see in this part, as in all others undertaken by this lady, a combination of method and delicate refined instinct which go to place her among the most charming and womanly actresses on our stage. Her conception of Clare Fiolilott is one of those pictures in which the realism of life is joined to the poesy that the stage demands in the types of female lovelness which appeal to our sympathy. So evenly has the author distributed the interest among the mimor characters of the play that there is some difficulty in according to each its due importance. We are rather more interested in the love passages between Captain Mollineux and Clare Fiolilott than with the issue of the love story in which arte O'Neale is concerned, although it would seem at first sight that this lady should occupy our attention chiefly as the betrothed wife of Fiolilott, miss Lewis also plays her part with tact and reflacement, though the richness of her dress is somewhat out of keeping with the state of respectable poverty in which she is supposed to be living. The villains of the place are played by Mesars, Arnott and Beckett. The former gentleman gives us a picture of a dashily-dressed equired, whose manners are almost as bad as his principles. It is perhaps difficult for an actor to present a type like the one drawn by the author and keep him even on the edge of good breeding. Yet if actors and authors would reflect a little they would see that there is very little connection between conscience and manners. It ought to present a type like the one of awn by the author and keep him even on the edge of good breeding. See the mem cannot easily break away from. In drawing the character of Harv English lover are delightfully amusing, so full are they of waywardness and contradictions. Her part is a difficult one to piay, demanding a mingled lorge of character, and applied to the contradictions.

One of the most important events of the dra-

Miss Field received an ovation when she stepped on the stage and it was some time before she could proceed. There was the least perceptible flutter of hervousness as she began, which in time wore away, and she continued through her part with great applause. A first performance can hardly be called a true criterion of the true merit of an actress, but Miss Field showed great sprigntiness, taste and true comedy power. Her conception of Peg was based upon the real character of the famous actress, and was an enriest effort to present her genius and versatility. In the last act Miss Field was repeatedly applicated and overwheimed with flowers, and at the close of the performance she came before the curtain and was rewarded with a round of cheers.
